NAMI Bakery Website and Brand Redesign

This project will serve as a rebrand of the NAMI Bakery, in Phoenix, Arizona. The objectives of this project will be to show a different style of NAMI be it the website and branding of the business. The objectives will expand into other visuals than the original appearance of the website and brand. The brand, now, has a clean and joyful feel to it. My take on the branding will seep into industrial and raw “organic” styles.

The project will briefly layout the visuals of the potential new branding along with examples of how a website can be created with the new branding and direction. Colors, logos, imagery, and promotional photos will serve as elements of the new branding and website.

The target audience for this branding will be the business owners and new/reoccurring customers.

Equipment that will be needed are a computer with internet access and software to design and draw out these visuals (Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, etc.)

This project will take anywhere from a couple of months to finish. Possibly 2 months due to the lack of actually creating the product, but showcasing a potential new idea.

PART 2: Sources of Inspiration

This photo was chosen because of the calmness it carries and the representation of fruit, which is big within the vegan lifestyle.

This photo was a selection because of the imagery the signage creates with simplicity and technicality. The typeface is also a possible typeface that can be used within the branding.

This photo was chosen due to the exterior design of the establishment, which will tie in with the rebranding.

As with the exterior, the interior will play a role in branding. This photo was chosen as imagery to the atmosphere of what the branding will be like.
